BRIGHT CHILDREN.

In a very helpful paper Jeannette N.
Phillips brings out that star point—the value of giving children only such information as they will not have to un-learn. The following is an excerpt:

"Does it grow on a tree, or do they dig it out of the ground?"
"It is a freight train."
"What's a freight train?"
"To carry things from one place to another."

"That train is carrying wheat to the city, where wheat does not grow, for the people's bread, and when it comes back it will bring to us coffee and tea and sugar and other things that do not grow here, perhaps shoes and hats that we cannot make."

Another day it was: "Mamma, where does pepper come from?"
"It comes from a hot country 'way across the ocean."

"Does it grow on a tree, or do they
dig it out of the ground?"
"It is a freight train."
"What's a freight train?"
"To carry things from one place to another."

THE CLERK

CHAPTER XXI.

To Classified Town one day came a clerk;
A bright honest youth who was looking for work.
He searched many weeks but all was in vain,
Till at last his ardor began to wane.
His hat was soiled, and his suit was worn;
His heart was sad, and he looked forlorn.
"A way I'll show," remarked a friend,
"To all your troubles quickly end."
"Put a want ad small, two lines or more,
In Times ads-it will soon restore.
Your failing hope and renew ambition.
Through Times ads you'll obtain a position."
